POST CAREER BENEFITS: PROTECTION FOR YOUR FUTURE

IMPORTANT NOTE FOR CANADIAN TAX RESIDENTS: For any period of time during which you are both (i) a resident of Canada for income tax purposes and (ii) employed by the Toronto Raptors, you will not earn any benefits or years of NBA service (as applicable) under the NBA Players' Pension Plan, 401(k) Savings Plan or Post-Career Income Plan and will not earn any contributions under the HRA Benefit. However, you will receive a cash payment (net of applicable taxes) in lieu of any such benefits that you otherwise would have earned. You may be eligible to participate in the NBA Players' Pension Plan, 401(k) Savings Plan, Post-Career Income Plan and HRA Benefit during periods of time in which you are on the roster of a U.S. team.

Pension Plan (A Plan That Provides A Benefit For Retirement)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Once you are credited with three years of NBA service, you can receive your normal retirement monthly benefit at age 62 or reduced benefit as early as age 45; a portion of your benefit may be available as a lump sum. In general, you are credited with a year of NBA service for an NBA season during which you are either: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> on the active list, inactive list, or two-way list of any NBA team as of February 2 of that season (excluding players under a 10-day contract), or on the active list of one or more NBA teams for at least 50% of regular season games during that season. Your pension benefit grows as you earn additional years of NBA service (subject to IRS maximum benefit limits). For seasons in which you are on the Toronto Raptors' roster, you may accrue a pension benefit under the Toronto Raptors Players' Pension Plan. Any benefit that you may have under the NBA Players' Pension Plan is then offset by your benefit under the Toronto plan. This is intended to provide you with substantially the same total pension benefit that you would have accrued if you had played only for teams in the US. HRA Benefit (A Health Reimbursement Account you can use to Pay for Healthcare Expenses or Obtain Coverage after your NBA Playing Career Ends)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> When provided for under the Collective Bargaining Agreement, you receive a tax-free contribution to your health reimbursement account (HRA) for each year of NBA service (as described above). The contribution is $30,000 per season (with a lifetime maximum of $150,000). You may access your HRA funds only after earning 3 years of NBA service. Tax-free reimbursements of eligible out-of-pocket healthcare costs (e.g., copayments, deductibles, and prescription and over-the-counter drugs) and certain post-career health insurance coverage costs. 	Zenith American Solutions 877-864-3522 www.zenithflex.com
Post Career Income Plan (A Plan That Provides Guaranteed Monthly Income Soon After Your NBA Career Ends And Continuing Until Your Pension Begins)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The plan provides guaranteed monthly income through insured annuities soon after your NBA career ends (but not before age 30). When provided for under the Collective Bargaining Agreement, you receive a collectively bargained team contribution for each year of NBA service (as described above), a portion of which is tax-deferred. In addition, you may elect to contribute 2%, 5%, 7% or 10% of your eligible pay. Your elective contributions are included in your current taxable income when the contributions are deducted from your salary, and only the earnings portion of the future monthly payments of the annuities purchased with your elective contributions will be taxable when these payments are made to you. You may choose from various annuity payment options, including monthly payments over a fixed period of at least 10 years until age 50 (or later) or lifetime payments.
